Vice President Marketing

Place of Work

Munich, Germany

As Vice President for Marketing at amiando you will be responsible for the planning, coordination and implementation of our marketing activities, with emphasis on Online-Marketing. You will work in the management team of amiando and be willing to take responsibility for the department budget as well as leading a small team of marketeers. Your activities will include the coordination of all marketing activities, working closely together with our product development, sales and strategy teams, as well as external agencies.

As an authority in the field with at least 5 years experience, you are an expert when it comes to the internet and are eager to take responsibility in a start-up company, where you will market an innovative product in both the B2B and B2C fields. Ideally you have already been able to gain experience in Events and have the expert knowledge of the Internet branch required to lead your team to success.

As well as top management qualities, we expect you to bring excellent skills in both German and English (a third language would also be beneficial) and an open personality. You work in a structured, analytical and success-oriented manner, at the same time as having the necessary creativity to successfully pursue new paths.

We offer a challenging position in a young and creative working environment, where you will have a large amount of freedom and be able to have a real influence in our dynamic team.
